FINANCIAL ELEMENTS

Important comments:

- The financial statements are closed for public viewing by law.
- The Net Sales value marked with an asterisk (*) is the result of an automated calculation developed by our team. It is based on analyzing data from over 45 million annual reports of more than 5 million companies across 240 countries, utilizing the latest Artificial Intelligence technologies. Key factors such as net sales, type of activity, regional economic conditions, inflation rates, year, and workforce size were considered. These projections offer estimated values where actual financial data is missing, with an expected accuracy of 50-75%. The calculated values may not correspond to the actual values.

COUNTRY DATA TRANSPARENCY INDEX

Country / region	Country / region rank	Data transparency index	Data transparency level
United States	70 out of 236	42.11	Low level

EXPLANATION OF COUNTRY DATA TRANSPARENCY INDEX

The country business data transparency index is based on the availability of information about businesses in the country - the more data is available in a particular country, the higher the data transparency level and the higher the country's rank in this table.
A higher level of data availability in a country results in a lower trade risk and a higher ranking on the index.

Data Transparency Index has 5 levels (measured in points):

Data transparency level	Amount of points
Very high level	85 - 100
High level	70 - 85
Medium level	50 - 70
Low level	35 - 50
Very low level	0 - 35

A higher index level implies better transparency. The scale ranges from 0 to 100, where 100 represents maximum transparency and 0 represents minimum transparency.
The Data Transparency Index is provided to clients to help them understand how open a country is in terms of data collection.
It's important to note that as the amount of information available decreases, the risk associated with trade increases - this is because insufficient data makes it challenging to assess the reliability of a company.

COUNTRY ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

ECONOMIC FORECAST FOR THE UNITED STATES

Publication date: 28.11.2024

Rapid GDP growth in 2024 was driven largely by strong domestic demand. However, the growth momentum is expected to moderate, as the labour market cools, and fiscal policy becomes somewhat less loose. Meanwhile, inflation has fallen and is getting closer to the target, allowing the Fed to implement the first rate cut since the COVID-19 pandemic. Risks to the growth outlook are balanced, but uncertainty is elevated, especially over the policies of the new administration following the November presidential elections.

Indicators	2024	2025	2026
GDP growth (%, yoy)	2.7	2.1	2.2
Inflation (%, yoy)	2.4	2.1	2
Unemployment (%)	4.1	4.4	4.4
General government balance (% of GDP)	-7.8	-7.4	-6.9
Gross public debt (% of GDP)	124.1	126.2	127.7
Current account balance (% of GDP)	-3.1	-3.1	-3

Robust economic growth is expected to moderate.

The US economy expanded by 0.7%, q-o-q in 2024-Q2, followed by another 0.7% q-o-q expansion in 2024-Q3, according to preliminary estimates. Private consumption was the main engine of growth in both Q2 and Q3, while government spending and private investment also contributed positively to GDP growth in both quarters. Strong domestic demand boosted imports, with the trade and current account deficits remaining large, despite robust exports growth. With the momentum extending into the fourth quarter, annual real GDP growth is forecast to reach 2.7% in 2024, before moderating to a still strong 2.1% in 2025, as the labour market cools and with the fiscal deficit expected to decrease marginally. Both consumption and capital formation growth rates are projected to remain solid. GDP growth is expected to edge up to 2.2% in 2026, supported by the pass-through from looser monetary policy and stronger growth in residential construction.

Consumption is set to moderate on the back of a cooler labour market.

The growth in the labour force has remained strong, fuelled by substantial immigration inflows. The new vacancies and hiring rates have moderated significantly over the course of the last 12 months and the unemployment rate increased to 4.2% in 2024-Q3, from 3.7% a year earlier. However, unemployment remains historically low, while prime age (25-64) labour force participation and employment rates have remained above their pre-pandemic levels. As labour demand is set to moderate further, the unemployment rate is forecast to increase to 4.4% in 2025, before edging down to 4.3% in 2026. Solid employment and nominal wage growth are set to support household consumption going forward, but real wage growth is projected to gradually moderate from this year's expected 1.5%, to 1.1% in 2026.

Risks are balanced but uncertainty is high.

The risks to the growth outlook appear balanced. On the upside, a still healthy labour market, robust household balance sheets and increasing financial wealth of households could provide an additional boost to private consumption. On the other hand, inflation could prove more persistent than anticipated, or the ongoing cooling of the labour market could deepen, weighing on household incomes and balance sheets. Besides the macroeconomic risks, future policies of the new administration constitute a major source of uncertainty for the medium-term outlook, as reflected in the currently elevated levels of policy uncertainty indices. The fiscal outlook is a particular source of uncertainty. Looser than assumed fiscal policy could boost short-term demand, while adding to inflationary pressures. In the medium-term, it could further fuel debt sustainability concerns, adding to challenges related to increased health and aging-related spending.
